Editorial

Dear Readers,

Welcome to the latest edition of our school newsletter! This year, our theme is as vibrant and diverse as our student's body itself – “The Rainbow.” It is a theme that resonates deeply with the spirit of our school, where every child brings a unique hue to the canvas of their educational journey. Much like the colours of a rainbow, our school is a beautiful blend of different backgrounds, talents, and perspectives. Each child in our school represents a unique shade in the grand palette of diversity. It's this diversity that enriches our learning environment, providing us with an opportunity to learn and grow together, accepting and cherishing our differences. Our school's vibrant community thrives when the unique individuals unite and interact with each other. Our campus is a place where students from different backgrounds not only coexist but also collaborate, fostering an environment that encourages understanding, respect and inclusion.

We would like to say that ...

Innocence and wonder in each child's gaze, a spectrum of hope on their carefree days,
Colors bloom in their laughter and play, like a vibrant rainbow lighting their way.

Whether the effigies of Ravana should be burnt or not on Dusshera.

Dussehra is also known as Vijayadashami in some regions of India. This festival signifies the victory of the power of good over that of the power of evil. People are of different views regarding the burning of effigies. Some are in favor of this and some are not. The people who are in favor of this they said that Ravana is a sign of the end of evil and victory of goodness. He was a son of Rishi but all his actions were like a demon. He was a great king and fell prey to Maya, and chose to stand by his wailing sister instead of taking fair stand for his people. He fell slave to anger, and committed many sins in the process. Whereas others are of the view that Ravana should not be burnt on the contrary we should worship him as he was Lord Shiva's ardent devotee and a reservoir of knowledge. He was a voracious reader, a well-educated man and was well-versed in all of the shastras, Vedas, as well as science and mathematics. He was a compassionate emperor. No doubt Ravana had abducted Sita but he did not disrespect her. To conclude we are humans and good and evil both resides in us. If the good i.e. inner Ram wins a person achieves victory in life but if the inner Ravana wins then the person starts moving on the path of self-destruction. So if our inner Ram conquers our inner Ravana then the life becomes beautiful.
